NEW QUESTION: 1
Note: This question is part of a series of questions that use the same scenario. For your convenience, the scenario is repeated in each question. Each question presents a different goal and answer choices, but the text of the scenario is exactly the same in each question in this series.
Start of repeated scenario.
Your company has a marketing department.
The network contains an Active Directory domain named constoso.com. The domain contains the servers configured as shown in the following table.

All servers run Windows Server 2016. All client computers run Windows 10 and are domain members. All laptops are protected by using BitLocker Drive Encryption (BitLocker).
You have an organizational unit (OU) named OU1 that contains the computer accounts of application servers. An OU named OU2 contains the computer accounts of the computers in the marketing department. A Group Policy object (GPO) named GP1 is linked to OU1. A GPO named GP2 is linked to OU2.
All computers receive updates from Server1. You create an update rule named Update1.
End of repeated scenario.

NEW QUESTION: 2
An organization wants to deploy applications that can programmatically alter network behavior. In addition, they want to deploy additional network services in real-time. Which cloud-management component should be included in the design to support this requirement?
A. Network Management Controller
B. Hypervisor Element Manager
C. Virtual Switch Manager
D. Software-Defined Network Controller
Answer: D
Explanation:
An SDN controller is an application in software-defined networking (SDN) that manages flow control to enable intelligent networking. SDN controllers are based on protocols, such as OpenFlow, that allow servers to tell switches where to send packets.
In effect, the SDN controller serves as a sort of operating system (OS) for the network. By taking the control plane off the network hardware and running it as software instead, the controller facilitates automated network management and makes it easier to integrate and administer business applications.
